Man Freezes to Death in Chicago— Railways and Wire Service Suffer From Blizzard.

Trees are heavily coated with ice and the weight of ice has broken many branches and great damage has been done the fruit trees in this way. The ice has crushed down many telegraph and telephone wires and the service is crippled. All railroad trains are running late owing partially to ice on the rails, but more to loss of telegraph wires which make it necessary for the trains to feel their way along.

Blizzard weather prevails in St. Louis and westward into Kansas, heavy rains being followed by snow and then severe cold weather. One man was frozen to death in Chicago.

CASH

Offered Kaiser by Carnegie

Bowen Thanked Him but Declined Offer

GERMANY HAS LOST MORE THAN SHE GAINED.

MONROE DOCTRINE IS STRONGER

English Paper's Comment on the Venezuelan Situation to Date—The Blockade is Raised.

Washington, Feb. 16.—(Bulletin)—Minister Bowen and Judge P. Field, solicitor of the state department will meet this afternoon to arrange terms of the protocol between the United States and Venezuela. It will provide for the appointment of a commission to adjust the claims of American citizens in Venezuela.

London, Feb. 16.—The Westminster Gazette in an editorial on Venezuela affairs today points out that Germany has lost far more than she has gained in the matter. That paper says the chief result of the end of the Venezuelan affair is that the Monroe doctrine emerges with immensely increased authority. Germany has her 65,000 pounds, but she has been made a party to a principle which she would have spent a hundred times 68,000 pounds in resisting, for she has accepted the American veto to her landing troops or taking territorial guarantees.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Moved by the spirit in which Herbert W. Bowen has conducted the peace negotiations at Washington with like representatives of the allies, and anxious that his mission should succeed, Andrew Carnegie upon hearing of Germany's action in demanding a cash payment of 1,118,000 bolivars instead of the $5,500 previously promised her, sent the following message to Mr. Bowen, dated February 12:

"I shall be glad to hand you over at once $360,000 to meet the German demand if Venezuela desires it."

This fact became known Saturday after the last of the addenda to the British embassy. Mr. Carnegie, it is said, had been watching with close interest the progress of the negotiations here. The message was sent as soon as the news of Germany's demands was published.

Mr. Bowen dispatched a grateful reply to Mr. Carnegie, thanking him for his generous offer, which, however, it was not necessary to accept.

In announcing Mr. Carnegie's offer Mr. Bowen said that many banks and financial syndicates had all along been anxious to lend money to Venezuela, and had sent representatives to see him with this end in view, though these offers were of a business nature, whereas the offer of Mr. Carnegie was made without any reservation or mention of security for the return of his money.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Cablegrams have been pouring in upon Mr. Bowen from Venezuela congratulating him upon the success of his mission.

The first to arrive was from President Castro, and read as follows:

"Bowen, Washington: 'In the name of Venezuela and in my own name, I offer you expressions of my eternal gratitude with which you have served the cause of justice, which is the cause of the humanity that distinguishes superior minds.' (Signed) 'CASTRO.'"

It is not expected that the next set of protocols providing for the reference of the preferential question to The Hague will be taken up until the middle of next week.

London, Feb. 16.—The blockade of the Venezuelan coast by British ships has been telegraphed to the government, and the blockade is being immediately raised.

Berlin, Feb. 16.—The blockade of the Venezuelan coast by British ships has been telegraphed to the government, and the blockade is being immediately raised.

TWO BOLD HOLD UPS IN THE WINDY CITY.

BURGLARS STOPPED TO DRINK

A Little Champagne They Had Stolen and Two of Trio Were Landed in Jail.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Three "stickup" men armed with revolvers entered the saloon of Chas. McCabe on State street at 4 o'clock this morning and after standing four patrons, the bar-keeper and proprietor in a line, robbed them and forced them into the ice box. The robbers locked their victims in the box and went across the street to James O'Connell's saloon where they treated the proprietor and two customers in the same manner. By the time the robbers left O'Connell's place their victims at McCabe's saloon had been liberated and were in pursuit. The robbers were overtaken in a hotel where they had stopped to drink some champagne they had taken from the last saloon they had visited. A revolver fight ensued and two of the hold-up men, John O'Brien, alias Michael Byrnes and "Matty" McDonald were arrested.

LAVISH

EXPENDITURES AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Roosevelt Believed to be Spending More Than His Salary for Extravagant Entertainments.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The recent estimates sent to Congress for the expense of the White House and the talk of the House in regard to alleged extravagance, have revived the gossip regarding the salary of Presidents. The President receives a salary of $50,000 a year, and this amount seems large or small, according to the point of view. Some Presidents have been able to lay by a considerable part of their salary.

It is commonly believed that President Cleveland and President Harrison, and in a lesser degree, President McKinley, saved a considerable part of their annual salaries. As a rule, entertaining on a large scale at the White House was not nearly as common 10 years ago as it is now. The formal state dinners and receptions have been an established custom since the time of the first President, but the extent of the entertaining beyond these purely formal and necessary functions has depended very much on the tastes and inclinations of the man who happened to occupy the presidential office.

President Roosevelt has, beyond question, surpassed all his predecessors in the magnitude and number of his entertainments. When Arthur occupied the White House he surprised the people with the lavishness of his entertaining.

But President Roosevelt has been almost as lavish in his entertainment of senators and members of Congress, and he has entertained other guests in a much larger number than any other President. The entertainments given by the Roosevelts have been in many cases of an exceptionally expensive kind. Among the most elaborate were the musicales that were given frequently last winter and have been resumed this season.

The musicales were paid by the President and refreshments for several hundred guests were provided by him. Mrs. Roosevelt has also given a large number of large afternoon teas and receptions. The expense of entertaining has been met by the President's private purse. It is believed he has lived beyond his official income.

JURY

FAILED TO AGREE AND IT WAS DISCHARGED.

Attorneys for the State Have Not Decided Yet What to Do—Out Forty-Eight Hours.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 16.—After being out forty-eight hours the jury in the case of Dr. J. C. Alexander failed to reach an agreement and was discharged at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. On the final ballots the vote stood 8 for acquittal and 4 for conviction. On the first ballot taken Saturday morning the vote was 4 for acquittal and 5 for conviction. On the next ballot the vote stood eight to four. That was the last from that time until the jury was discharged, with the exception of one or two instances. The attorneys for the state have not decided what they will do.

There were several serious interruptions during the consideration of evidence in the jury room, which came very nearly resulting in a deadlock. Junior Lincolnton, a juror, was called out of the jury room and was being taken to the hospital, where he was being treated for a severe case of pneumonia. The juror was being taken to the hospital, where he was being treated for a severe case of pneumonia.

The perplexing questions in the case of the juror, they say, was whether Dr. Alexander had guilty knowledge of the facts that the body of the juror had been unlawfully taken from the grave. The juror was being taken to the hospital, where he was being treated for a severe case of pneumonia.

The Democratic City Council, in its persistent fighting of Mayor Forry, thus handicapping him in his administration of public affairs, has placed itself on record in the Holbrook case, as being opposed to paying a man the wages he has fairly earned, partially because he was an appointee of Mayor Forry, and it is also believed partially because he was a witness against a saloon keeper in this city who was charged with operating a slot machine contrary to law.—American-Tribune.

The aforesaid Holbrook is alleged to have given testimony that he saw a slot machine in operation in a certain saloon. But it is said that subsequent testimony by the Mayor did not verify Holbrook's statement and it was deemed worthless.

Now, as this same saloon, was well known headquarters for certain Republican politicians and candidates during the county campaign of last fall, and where means were contrived and carried out to knife and slaughter Democratic candidates, it can readily be seen how absurd is the above charge of the A.T. that Democratic Councilmen would be actuated by political motives in declining to pay an illegal claim to an alleged policeman.

More Falsehoods on the City Council.

Friday night's issue of the American-Tribune contained another of its series of untruthful assaults on the City Council, again affirming that exploded falsehood that the Council was conspiring to cripple the Mayor's administration by refusing to pay his appointees on the police force. The excuse for this, its latest spasm, is the failure of the Council to pay one Jas. Holbrook for alleged services as a policeman last month.

The facts are completely at variance with the American-Tribune's statement of them. It seems that in November or December a vacancy occurred on the police force and a man named Harry Foutz was appointed by the Mayor to fill the vacancy. This appointment was reported to Council, and Foutz was paid with the other policemen. Then Foutz was dropped and Holbrook substituted. Inasmuch as the Mayor has no authority to discharge a policeman, the dropping of Foutz was inquired into by some members of the Council, and it developed that after appointing Mr. Foutz the Mayor discovered that he was a Democrat. He sent for Mr. Foutz and asked him if it was true that he was a Democrat; to which Foutz answered that it was. The Mayor then demanded that he promise to vote the Republican ticket at the coming spring election, or he would make way with him. This Mr. Foutz refused to do, saying that he was a Democrat, and would not desert his party for the job. Then the Mayor attempted to oust him for the benefit of Holbrook. This state of affairs coming to the attention of the police committee it was decided not to pay either man until the committee could investigate to whom the pay was due. The matter is now in the hands of the police committee and has not yet been acted upon.

The American-Tribune is contradicted by the following named men appointed by the Mayor all either have served on the force or are now serving, and have been regularly paid for their services:

John Scott, serving now.
Doc Brooke, serving now.
McClatchy, off with broken arm.
Swank, now serving.
Joe Haslop, now serving.
W. M. Holler, Chas. Hettishimer, H. D. Jacobs, Thos. Evans, J. A. Clemmings, Harvey Hull, Joseph A. Oldroyd, Albert Zipperer, George Ray, Andrew Cramer, W. Griffith, Wm. H. Dennis.

The real fact is every man on the police force will carry out every order that the Mayor issues, and this has been the case from the beginning of the Mayor's term to the present time.

GIANT SUBMARINE BOAT.

France to Build One With Four Torpedo Tubes—Cost, $250,000.

The French ministry of marine has just announced that the construction of a submarine (large submarine boat), the dimensions of which will surpass those of all the submarines which have been turned out or are being built in France, will be begun this year, says the New York Times.

Hitherto the largest submarine, the Gustave Zede, had a displacement of 265 tons, but that of the new boat will exceed 350 tons when it is under the water. It is to be 49 meters in length, 4.5 meters in breadth, and its draft of water will be about 2.5 meters. The craft will be provided with a single screw, and it is expected to sail on the surface of the sea at the rate of eleven knots. It is to have four torpedo tubes, and the cost of its construction is estimated at $250,000, or one-third more than the price of the most expensive submarine hitherto built.

It is added that the problem of craft of this category is now definitely solved. The submarine is only to be regarded as purely defensive, whereas the submersible which is about to be constructed will, it is thought, be able to attempt an attack on the enemy's ports and also to cruise along the commercial routes. It is expected that it will be completed in about two years.

Insomnia For Veterinarians.
A horse's hoof had been selected as the insignia of the corps of veterinarians, the latest addition to the United States army, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. The presiding hoof is given a mythological value by the addition of wings, like those of Mercury, in order to give the effect of motion. Veterinarians in the cavalry arm will wear the winged horse's hoof pendant from the familiar crossed sabers, and those attached to the artillery will display it under the crossed cannons symbolic of that arm.

BOWSER AS A BUYER

He Attends a "Marked Down" Sale and Secures Some Great Bargains

WHEN dinner was over the other evening in the Bowser mansion, Mr. Bowser slipped out of the sitting room for three or four minutes and returned with a package that he had hidden away when he came in.

"What is it, dear?" asked Mrs. Bowser as he stood before her with a fathfully smile on his face.

"You may guess," he playfully replied. "But how can I? Is it something for me?"

"My dear woman, I want to talk to you for a few minutes. Like all other wives, you do considerable shopping."

"No, dear, but—"

"It happens to be two sizes too small for me. This is 32, while I wear 35. It was awfully good of you to think of buying me a shirt waist, and I presume I can exchange it."

"And wasn't it a bargain for $4.50?"

"I think it was."

"Hm. This is the thanks I get for running around for half a day. Here is a remnant of blue velvet I got to make you a dress waist. I heard you saying you wanted something of the sort. The regular price was 65 cents a yard, but it was marked down to 47. Is it a bargain or not?"

"I'm rather sorry you got it," replied Mrs. Bowser, who wanted to spare his feelings and yet felt obliged to answer his question. "It's blue, and I can't wear blue, and it's what they call cotton backed. I'll try to exchange it, however, and I thank you very much."

"Oh, you do?" sneered Mr. Bowser, as he stood off and looked at her. "You can bet your boots I won't make a fool of myself again. Here I have saved you hundreds of dollars, but nothing says."

"This is the last purchase—half a dozen handkerchiefs—and perhaps you'll say I paid too much for them. The regular price all over the world is 75 cents, but on this occasion it was reduced to 45."

"They are very good," said Mrs. Bowser as she examined them.

"But you are not overpleased. You could have done better."

"Well, they are about the same as the

"Because I never wear brown stockings and because these are No. 10."

"But what has color to do with it?" persisted Mr. Bowser as he flushed up.

"Nothing perhaps, but they are a size and a half too large, and I can never wear them. It was owing to their size that you got them so cheap. If you had only known—"

"I know that those stockings are all right and the biggest bargain on earth," he interrupted. "After being washed twice they will probably be too small for you. I expect you will also find fault with the next purchase, which is a regular six dollar shirt waist reduced to $1.50. Here is another saving of $1.50, and what have you got to say about it? Is that a size and a half too large?"

"No, dear, but—"

"It happens to be two sizes too small for me. This is 32, while I wear 35. It was awfully good of you to think of buying me a shirt waist, and I presume I can exchange it."

"KIND BE HANGED," ROARED MR. BOWSER.

You flatter yourself that you are a close buyer. Almost every day you come home to brag of the bargains you have made."

"Yes; I think I do pick up some bargains now and then."

"You think so, and not wishing to hurt your feelings, I have said nothing about it, not even when I knew you had paid full price for things. As a matter of fact, you have been swindled on most occasions."

"Where you would have made great bargains?" she sarcastically queried, but smiling all the time.

"Exactly, my dear, exactly. I know the value of things ten times better then you do. Any husband is a better buyer than his wife. It stands to reason that he is."

"You might know more about shavers and grindstones than I do."

"And about everything else, as I shall shortly prove to you. It may surprise you to learn that I have spent the afternoon in attending bargain sales at the dry goods stores. I had a double object in view—first, I knew you needed several things for your wardrobe, and, second, I wanted to show you that I could buy to better advantage than you could."

"Well, I hope you have. Let's see what you have."

"The first thing that appears to our gaze," said Mr. Bowser as he broke the string securing the package, "is a pair of white gloves. Examine them, and you will find that they are the regular $1.50 gloves, and yet I got them for 98 cents. I challenge you to say that you ever bought as good a pair for the money. Right here is a saving of 52 cents, and it is only the beginning. Anything more with them?"

"No," reluctantly replied Mrs. Bowser as she turned them over and over. "But you don't seem pleased."

"Well, you see they are No. 35, and my size is only 34. You didn't think of that, you know."

"Hm. I don't see how that will make any difference. However, if they are a little too large, you can wear them and cause a stir among the boys. It's all both to number gloves any more."

"Now let me call your attention to two pairs of brown silk stockings. The regular price is $2.50 per pair, but I got them for $1.75. Here is a saving of $1.50. I'll bet you never made such a bargain in your whole life."

"No; I didn't," admitted Mrs. Bowser, with a sigh. "The only trouble is—" twenty-five cent handkerchiefs I bought last week. It was kind of you, however, and—"

"Kind be hanged!" roared Mr. Bowser who had wanted to break loose for the last ten minutes. "You know that everything here is a tremendous bargain, but you don't want to admit it. You couldn't have bought over half the things with the same money."

"It was not me, you but, you see, a man doesn't know—"

"He does know! He knows all about it. We know all about it, however. I might have known how it would be, but I go and spend my time and cash out money to be called an idiot. By thunder, but I can see now why the best of husbands are driven to drink."

"I say it was awfully kind and considerate of you," began Mrs. Bowser, but he interrupted her with:

"I say kindness be hanged! I am going out. As I say not return before midnight you couldn't sit up for me."

He marched down the hall and got his overcoat and hat and banged the front door after him. He was boiling over, but lacking there was an escape valve at hand. A belated umbrella under the opposite side of the door, and Mr. Bowser let out a fierce warwhoop and rushed for the street. There was a snort which carried the itinerant and six old maid's eyes and the forces, and then Mrs. Bowser, who had come to the door, found a cluster of footprints down the street. Mr. Bowser had struck a lot of mud and was pushing it for all it was worth. The umbrella had been in each hand and was covering five feet at a jump.

"No! I didn't," admitted Mrs. Bowser, with a sigh. "The only trouble is—"

"Trouble? Why should there be any trouble?"

"She says and she doesn't."

BY HELP OF SUE

(Copyright, 1932, by the S. S. McClure Company.)

"Come, Jed; don't be a fool about it now."

"Sue, I'm afraid they'll catch us. It's too risky." The boy shrank back in the doorway of the humble brown cottage.

"Risky!" cried his sister scornfully. "Who pulled you out of the airhole? Who near lost his own life for your miserable little skin? You come along!"

Still the small brother paused, anxious, irresolute, glancing at the starlit sky.

"It's so light," he muttered, "an' an' an' pa's likely to come home any time."

"An hour yet," Susan Bates' ill shod little foot tapped hard on the stone step, her voice ringing angrily. "I'm waiting," she said.

"I don't know!"

Two strong brown hands shot out and shook him fiercely. "I'll go!" articulated Jedediah gaspingly.

"That's right; pick up the tools by the gate. Get your cap first. Don't whisper, Jeddy. I'll carry the saw."

In the shadow of the rock maples the two stole silently, then off the road by the pasture fence, along the row of chokeberries and brush into the lane leading to Munn's barn.

"Careful, now," whispered the girl, bending her little young form in crouching watchfulness. "He's in the second stall, eh?"

"Yep," Jed shuddered.

"Crawl up on your knees. Don't mind the dirt. There! They'll never see us. The house is rods away. Give me that chisel."

The crack between the old barn boards widened. "Chip, chip."

"The saw now, Jed. I'll have to use it."

"You'll make an awful noise."

"Shut up!" The moonlight cast a profile against the gray wood—a girl's bare head, the upturned nose, the round set of the firm jaw, the curly mass of hair. To the boy it seemed uncanny, quivering there. He shivered again.

The saw rasped slowly through and squeaked on a nail. Susan's face was white as her dark eyes stared weirdly at her cowering companion.

Again, eighteen inches above, then the next plank; it was easier now. The pieces were removed; then a careful silence, listening.

"I can get through, Jed. Thank goodness, we've got so far! I'll call him now—Sam!" The low voice trembled into the dark interior, mingling with the sound of cud chattering cows and restless animal movement.

The young horse thief wrenched at his bonds, striving to rise, "Who's that?" with a note of hope in his strained voice.

"It's me—Sue. Where are you? Keep talking—not too loud."

"Over here in the stall. I'm tied."

"Your knife, Jeddy. Here!" She withdrew her head, gave him a quick caress. "Take the things and scoot."

Five minutes later a man, cramped and blinking, crouched outside the aperture. "Hurry, Susie," he pleaded. "They've gone for an officer. I expect 'em any minute."

"Right away." The girl groped in the musty blackness. "I've got it—Munn's saw. Scatter those chips and scrape up the sawdust. Lucky I knew where he kept it. Now, Sam."

He helped her out. Together they crawled cautiously away through the lane, through the pasture by the sheltering saplings on to the great clump of pines. Safe!

Before them rose the rugged domes of the Tacnocs—fastnesses all for such as Samuel Willey. He laughed in triumph, gloating at the prospective wrath of his captors. "Tomorrow night I'll be in Massachusetts," he grinned. "Guess I'll work south."

His rescuer was fumbling at her pocket. "Here, Sam! It's the best I could do—only bread and butter. We didn't have any meat."

"My God!" cried Willey, with sudden, broken words. "You thought of that, too, Susie! Oh, I ain't worth all this!"

Lucy's Old Dog Bobby

"Good gracious!" said Lucy's father as he came into the dining room one evening and nearly tumbled over a big black dog. "Where did it's ugly brute come from? Here, turn him out, somebody."

"Oh, daddy, no!" said Lucy pleadingly. "He looks so thin and hungry, and you should just have seen him eat the dinner we gave him. Cook says he couldn't have had anything to eat for days. Please—please let me keep him, daddy."

"Keep him? Nonsense!" said her father. "I can't have dogs about the house. It's not to be thought of, Lucy. You must be satisfied with your kittens."

"And such an ugly dog, too," said Lucy's mamma. "He will be sure to tear the curtains. How can you want to keep him, Lucy?"

He was very slazy and dirty, and something was the matter with one of his eyes, but the other big brown one looked so mournfully up into Lucy's pretty blue ones that the tears would come into them as she heard what was to be his fate.

"Must he really go, mamma, dear?" she whispered, sidling up to her mother in her coaxing way. "I will look after him myself, and I won't let him tear the curtains. Look at him. And it's so wet tonight, and he has no home. Please let him stay."

"You must not tease me, Lucy," said her mother. "Of course the dog must go. Come, don't be a baby."

"Well, may he stay just for one night and go tomorrow?" pleaded Lucy. "It is raining so hard."

"Oh, very well, little worry," said her mother. "But, mind, he must go first thing in the morning."

And with this Lucy had to be content, and kissing the ugly old dog very pityingly on his shaggy head, she went off quite cheerfully to bed.

But in the night the household was roused with such a noise of barking and scuffling that everybody jumped out of bed to see what it was all about, and Lucy woke up in such a fright that she jumped right out of her cot and hid her face in her mother's arms.

"It's all right, darling," said her mother, trying to comfort her. "Your good old dog has been our best friend after all. It hadn't been for him a wicked man would have stolen away all our pretty things. Now papa and Uncle Bob have caught him, and a policeman is going to take him straight off to prison."

"What—my old dog?" said Lucy in horror.

"No, dear; the burglar. The dear old dog held him until papa went down and caught him."

And just then papa came running upstairs breathless and excited.

"You shall keep your dog, Lucy," he said. "He's a brave old fellow, and he shall have a fine silver collar with his name on, and you shall call him just what you like, pet."

"I think," said Lucy, with a happy little laugh, as she suggested down into her cot again—"I think I shall call him Bobby, because he was a policeman to-night, wasn't he, daddy?"

And Bobby he was called and lived a very long and peaceful life with little Lucy and her friends.—London Penny Pictorial.

Showing Age.

Some people begin to show age before the meridian of life is reached, or they have lived out half their days. They are prematurely gray, haggard and sickly, and seldom free from an ache or pain of some description.

Cold feet, chilly sensations, stiffness in muscles and joints, weak stomach and poor digestion, lack of energy, and drowsiness, nervousness, etc., show that old age has been reached ahead of time. Bad blood and weak circulation more often produce these miserable feelings and signs of decay than anything else. An inherited taint or poison of some description is at work in the system, causing stagnation and a general unhealthy condition of the blood; and this, and not the weight of years, is dragging you down to an untimely old age and making life a protracted torture.

For purifying the blood and toning up the circulation nothing is equal to S. S. S. It removes from the system all the waste matter that has been accumulating for years, and makes the blood rich and pure, stimulates the appetite and digestion, and invigorates the entire body.

S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, and the best purifier and tonic for old people, and those who are beginning to show age because of the run down condition of the blood. With rich, pure blood there is no reason why old people should not retain the happy disposition and buoyant spirits of youth.

If you have a cancerous sore, Rheumatism, or any of the ailments common to old age, write us about it, and our Physicians will advise you without charge. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

Wealth in Lappand.

What the buffalo was to the Indian the reindeer is to the Lapps. At the present day the wealth of a Lapp is calculated in reindeer. Thus, when the people speak of a man's estate they say, "He is worth so many deer." Those who have only fifty or sixty head are poor servants, and their deer are put with those of their "betters." To have any kind of social standing in Lappand one should possess at least 500 of these animals. A Lapp is considered well off when he is the happy owner of not less than 1,000 reindeer.

A Couple of Balls.

In General Moore's command was an Irish soldier who, having been asked if the Hollanders were a hospitable people, immediately replied: "They are that; too much so. Oi was in the hospital all the time Oi was there."

OPERA HOUSE

FOR YEARS THE FIRST PLAY HOUSE OF NEWARK.

Stage and Seats Now Being Removed from This Block Built by Geo. Wallace.

The tearing out of the seats and stage, marks the passing of the old opera house, the pioneer amusement hall of the city of Newark.

The opera house was built in 1863 by George Wallace, at that time a prominent dry goods merchant, now one of Newark's successful real estate and insurance agents. Mr. Wallace bought the land, and began to erect a building on the site, to be used for his business which needed larger quarters. A number of citizens urged him to make the second floor into an opera house, and in response to this, he so built it.

Mr. Wallace managed the house successfully for several years. At that time the late William Sayre was janitor, and James Miller, now employed in the oil house at the B. & O., was bill poster. At several times under subsequent owners Mr. Miller was manager of the house.

The brick work was done by A. B. and David Coffman, while the stone-work was done by John L. Jones. Other work about the building was done by the day, no contracts being let. The house cost over $30,000.

The new amusement hall was dedicated by James Murdock, the tragedian and lecturer, who appeared on the first two nights in the latter role.

The DeGroat company of Cincinnati was the first dramatic attraction, and for several weeks they played a successful engagement. Following this company and continuing down to the time the Auditorium was built, some of the most eminent actors, lecturers, and entertainers in America have trod the boards in the passing play house.

Theodore Tilton was engaged by Mr. Wallace at the time of Tilton's trouble with Henry Ward Beecher, but the attraction lost money. Samuel S. Cox, then famous as "Sunset" Cox, a lecturer and member of Congress, also lectured here but this attraction was also a financial failure.

Lawrence Barrett, John McCullough, Robert Downing, Frederic Ward, Thomas Keene and others equally famous have appeared to audiences in the old opera house, and the memories that linger about the old place, are very dear to many.

The building of the Opera House gave an impetus to West Main street, and other business houses were afterward built.

Mr. Wallace sold the building in the early seventies to James L. Birkey, who after a short ownership sold to J. B. Jones. Mr. Jones was the owner until a few months ago when W. D. Fulton the present owner purchased it.

What the second floor will be used for is not announced as yet.

Bar Tenders Union meets every first and third Thursday nights of each month.

DAVID GARRICK.

The Great Actor's Art and His Wife's Remarkable Feelings.

Mrs. Garrick's admiration of her husband's dramatic talents was intense, and on his great nights she would hang over her box, next the stage, in rapturous delight. The one flaw in her idol, she claimed, was a taste for low life, for which she blamed him greatly, insisting that he loved better to play Scrub to a low lived audience than one of his superior characters before an audience of taste.

On one particular occasion she was in her box in the theater when Garrick's impersonation of Richard III. was applauded to the echo. In that day a farce followed the tragedy of the evening, and as Mrs. Garrick rose to leave before it her husband came to the box to say he had some business in the greenroom which would detain him, so most unwillingly the lady was obliged to acquiesce and remain through the closing entertainment. This proved to be a comical series of blundering adventures which had befallen a countryman who had left his farm to see London and on his return gave his neighbors an account of the wonders he had met.

This characterization was received with such peals of applause that Mrs. Garrick, ever zealous of her husband's fame, began to think it rivaled those lately lavished on Richard III. Her feelings were nearly worked up to fever heat when she was attracted by the frantic efforts of her little spaniel dog to overleap the balcony that separated him from the stage, when she immediately became aware of the truth that the actor was Garrick and exclaimed: "Strange that a dog should know his master when the woman who loved him best in the world could not perceive his disguise."

BASE BALL IN NEWARK

An Organized Team Will be Placed in Newark the Coming Season—The Advocate Will Announce the Definite Plans at an Early Date.

The Advocate has consistently and persistently argued and maintained that Newark should have a good baseball team this coming season, and to this end some good work has been done by this paper.

The game should be put on a business basis and it will prove a paying venture. We cannot figure otherwise. The idea that towns like Chillicothe, Piquette, Lancaster and Circleville should have teams known as among the strongest, independent and semi-professional teams in the state, paying dividends to the club owners, while Newark with every advantage, should be satisfied with sporadic exhibitions of the national pastime, under conditions that prevailed last season, appears ridiculous.

Matters are now shaping themselves, and the Advocate, in the near future, hopes to announce to the lovers of baseball in Newark, the definite news that Newark will have the best baseball ever seen in the city. The plans for the organization of the team and its management have not yet matured, but will shortly, and Newark will take her rightful position, as one of the leading baseball cities in Ohio.

This paper will as soon as practicable announce the plans for the new team, and they will receive the instant endorsement of every lover of the game in Newark.

Woodruff to Coach Illinois.

George Woodruff of Pennsylvania "guards back" fame will coach the University of Illinois football team next fall. The contract between Woodruff and George Huff, director of athletics at Illinois, was signed Saturday. George Huff made the announcement Saturday evening during the progress of the Illinois-Chicago meet. He announced this cheering news at a moment when it was plain that Illinois could not be victor in the track meet.

Whist Championship Decided.

The Chicago Whist club and the Cincinnati Whist club, the two western clubs that made the best record in the A. W. L. match at Manhattan Beach last July, played last Saturday at Chicago to determine which would be the first holder of the challenge trophy in the western series. The Cincinnati got into the lead at the start and when the teams adjourned for supper were five tricks to the good. They maintained their lead up to the forty-fourth deal, at that point being still three tricks ahead, but in the last four deals the Chicago netted four tricks and won out by a single trick.

The score for the first half was Cincinnati.

LIKE FINDING MONEY

F. D. Hall Offers Popular Medicine at Half Price.

Mr. F. D. Hall the popular druggist is making an offer that is just like finding money, for he is selling a regular 50 cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, in addition to this large discount he agrees to return the money to any purchaser whom the specific does not cure.

It is quite unusual to be able to buy fifty-cent pieces for a quarter, but that is what this offer really means, for it is only recently through the solicitation of Druggist Hall that this medicine could be bought for less than fifty cents. He urged the proprietors to allow him to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgment, for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, speaks before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr. Howard's specific will cure. But if by chance it should not Mr. Hall will return your money.

The specific is very pleasant to take coming in the form of small granules and there are sixty doses in every package. It is especially convenient when traveling, and no one should start on a journey without a bottle of this reliable medicine. Feb-2-19-16-24

Taral's Son to Ride.

"Like father, like son," is just as applicable to Fred Taral, the jockey, and his son John as it is to other persons. If there are any doubts on the subject Johnny will dispel them this year by emulating his father's deeds on the turf. He will start in as a jockey in Vienna on March 1. Johnny is 13 years old, and weighs 55 pounds. The fact that he is thirteen years old fails to deter Johnny from riding. He does not believe in "hoodoo" figures. He is courageous and ambitious to shine as the leading jockey of the world. Johnny accompanied his father on the Hamburg-American liner Blucher when she sailed for Europe recently.

THE RAILWAYS

GRANDMASTER HAWLEY WILL BE HERE.

B. & O. Checks Coming—Engine Off Track—The Royal Blue Book for February—Notes.

Mr. Frank T. Hawley, Grand Master of Switchmen, will be in Newark on Wednesday night and will address the railroad men at an open meeting at the B. of L. E. hall in the East End. This meeting will be in the interest of all railroad men, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

B. & O. Blue Book.

There are many published accounts of the John Brown insurrection at Harper's Ferry, but the most interesting is probably that published in the February number of "Book of the Royal Blue," in connection with the authentic dispatches and letters which passed between the principals engaged in capturing Brown.

The details given step by step, the unusual prominence of the men connected with the suppression of the insurrection, and the personality of the correspondence, make a most remarkable document. The narrative is further intensified by old-time photographs of Harper's Ferry, showing the U. S. armory buildings as they were at the time of the insurrection, also the same views taken during the civil war, showing the destroyed railroad bridge, and armory buildings and the remains of a pontoon bridge across the Potomac river. Portraits of the men who were foremost in the great tragedy are given, including no less personages than President Buchanan, Secretary of War Floyd, Governor Wise of Virginia, President Garrett of the B. & O. W. P. Smith, Master of Transportation of the B. & O., and Colonel Robert E. Lee.

The picturesque village of Harper's Ferry, thus brought into prominence in 1859, and later racked and torn by war, today peacefully guards the gap in the Blue Ridge mountains, where the Potomac and Shenandoah rivers meet. The government armories and rifle works have disappeared, and a simple granite shaft marks the location of "John Brown's Fort."

The story is especially valuable to schools and libraries for reference. Single copies may be had for five cents each, on application to D. B. Martin, Manager Passenger Traffic, Baltimore & Ohio railroad, Baltimore. The annual subscription to the magazine is but fifty cents, and each number issued monthly, contains some special article of interest.

With this appointment the passenger business of the lines becomes a distinct department of its own and will be operated in the same manner as on steam railroads.—Columbus Press.

DANGER IN SKYSCRAPERS.

Effect of Tall Buildings on the Wind Described by an Architect.

What is going to happen when the city's business streets become mere narrow canyons, flanking towering perpendicular cliffs of office buildings, and the wind takes a notion to blow a forty knot gale?

Put in all seriousness, this inquiry came the other day from an architect whose business is designing skyscrapers, says the Philadelphia Press.

"I'll tell you what I mean," this architect said. "When we first began to put buildings up high, they were regarded as fearsome affairs. People thought a stiff breeze would blow off the top stories or at least so weaken the structures that they might topple over. It was hard to get tenants for the very lofty floors."

"But in the battle between wind and building the building has won. The swift going air current strikes the mass of masonry with all its force, but skillfully placed stone and steel are too solid for it. The building doesn't even tremble."

"Now, though, there's a new danger threatening. When the wind comes against the building and finds a solid, impenetrable stop, as it can't cease moving it goes somewhere else. Where? Why, it is dashed down into the street."

"Take the Flatiron building in New York, for instance, to illustrate the danger. It's a three cornered affair with an apex front. It recently deflected a high wind down into Broadway that literally blew a box under an automobile and killed him and broke a thousand dollars' worth of plate glass windows besides nearly distorting pedestrians who passed below. They're talking about taking the Flatiron down or at least removing a few floors from it."

"Broad and Chestnut streets (Philadelphia) is a spot nearly as bad on a blustery day. Scores of persons have narrow escapes from being blown to their deaths under cars and vehicles. They can't stop or control their direction when a gale gets behind them there. And conditions will be worse when all the skyscrapers now building thereabout shall be added to the present number. The wind, confined to a narrow space, will act just like water does in a mill race. When it reaches corners, it will be a veritable whirlwind against which human beings will find it hard to move."

"Of course the skyscraper has come to stay and to grow still higher. And that's why my original question was asked—what's going to happen?"

When a man's temper gets the best of him it shows him at his worst.

Robert Miles Had a Leg and Nose Broken and Several of His Teeth Knocked Out.

Quite a serious accident occurred on the Columbus, Buckeye Lake & Newark Traction railway at a late hour on Saturday night. The last car had left Newark in charge of Conductor Jeffries and as it approached Reynoldsburg, a colored man named Robert Miles of that place, stepped on the track and flagged the car down. He then stepped off the track, but the handle of the car struck him, knocking him down and breaking one of his legs. His nose was also broken and a number of his teeth knocked out.

WEDDING

Of Miss Anna Ward, formerly of Newark, to Mr. L. O. Moore of Clarksburg, W. Va.

The Clarksburg, W. Va., Daily Telegram announces the wedding of Miss Anna Frances Ward, formerly of this city, to Mr. L. O. Moore as follows:

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ward on Mechanic street. Miss Anna Frances Ward, their youngest daughter, and Mr. Lawrence O. Moore, were united in bonds of holy matrimony, the Rev. Mr. Hudson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, performing the ceremony.

The wedding was solemnized at 7 o'clock. The bride was handsomely attired in a beautiful wedding gown of dark tan broadcloth over point lace. But a few intimate friends and members of the families witnessed the ceremony. Afterwards a wedding supper was served at the close of which a theatre party was made up and the evening's performance at the Grand opera house was enjoyed by the wedding party.

Mrs. Moore is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ward, and is a handsome and charming young lady. Mr. Moore is one of the city's finest young men, progressive and industrious. Both have a host of friends who wish the happy young couple a long, happy and prosperous life.

For the present, Mr. and Mrs. Moore will take up their residence at the bride's home. They intend leaving in a few days for an extended trip.

AT IRVILLE

Dr. W. W. Montgomery and Mrs. Daniel Fleming Die Monday.
Dr. Montgomery 82.

Dr. W. W. Montgomery, well known in the eastern part of Licking county, died at his home one mile east of Irville, in Muskingum county, at an early hour on Monday morning, at the advanced age of 82 years. The cause of his death was heart trouble and the ailments peculiar to advanced age. The deceased had lived in the neighborhood where he died for more than 40 years, and was a man who was held in highest esteem by all who knew him. By profession he was a physician, but had not been actively engaged in practice for about twenty-five years. His wife had been dead for many years. He is survived by one son and two daughters, Henry and Mrs. Elizabeth Frazier and Miss Ida Montgomery. He also leaves three brothers, Mr. John Montgomery, the well known stock raiser of near Granville, and Milton and Hamline Montgomery, who reside near Hanover. At this writing it is not known when the funeral will take place.

Mrs. Daniel Fleming, another old resident of Irville, also died early on Monday morning.

ISAAC HAWKINS.

Isaac Hawkins, whose early boyhood was passed at Union Station and at Lock, died on February 7, at Centerburg, aged 82 years. In 1841 he was married to Miss Huddleston, five children being born: Mrs. S. T. Vanatta of Mt. Vernon, Mrs. J. T. Preston and Mrs. A. S. Forsman, near Centerburg, Mrs. W. A. Wintermute and Chas. O. Hawkins of Mt. Liberty. In 1896 Mr. Hawkins was stricken with paralysis and on November 30, 1900, he fell, sustaining injuries, which confined him to his bed the rest of his life. His brother, W. D. Hawkins was buried three weeks ago. During his married life of 62 years and 14 days there had not been a death in the immediate family and of the five children, 16 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren, 40 in all, there had been but one death in that time and that a babe of four weeks. The funeral services were conducted Monday at 10 o'clock by Rev. C. J. Rose of the Baptist church, Mt. Vernon. The five children and sixteen great grandchildren were all present, his nine grandsons acting as pall bearers. Interment was made at Centerburg.

DOWIE'S BIG INVASION.

Three Thousand Zionites to Go to New York on Special Trains.

"My followers, the eyes of the world are upon you. Prepare to put on your armor and for the great march from Chicago to the sea. Have your swords sharpened and your armor shining, for before the harvest comes a great caravan of Christianity will move on to New York, next to Chicago the greatest home of vice in the world. And we will go on special trains, and none will be able to resist the mighty host of Zion."

John Alexander Dowie so heralded to his hearers at the Auditorium in Chicago the other day the coming invasion of Manhattan, says the New York World. Like a trained chorus, the 4,000 people who heard him shouted, "We will," when he asked them if they would follow on.

Dowie did not particularize in giving his plans. He said two mammoth tabernacles, "heretofore given over to worldly amusements," had been secured in Manhattan as well as accommodations for thousands of workers.

"So be ready when I call. At least 3,000 of you must go with me. We will go in the fastest cars, drawn by the swiftest engines, and for once there will be a line of Christians from this Sodom to that Gomorrah in the east. After we have done our work there we may build another Zion, but always the grand temple will remain upon the beautiful shores of Lake Michigan."

Real Romance of a Heroine.

The engagement of Miss Ethel Roland of Reading, the original heroine of Gilbert Parker's novel, "The Light of Day," to H. H. Berlin Voorhes, son of Vice President Voorhes of the Philadelphia and Reading, is announced. Miss Roland met the author when traveling abroad, and Mr. Parker as well as she has acknowledged the authenticity of the story. Mr. Voorhes is a civil engineer and is now associated with the Baltimore and Ohio at Baltimore.

Birthday Anniversary at Outville

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Winter had the pleasure of seeing all their family gather at their home in Outville, on Sunday, February 8, for the purpose of celebrating the 59th anniversary of Mrs. Winter's birthday.

Most of the family now reside in Columbus, consisting of Mrs. Maud A. Clark and son, Winter Clark. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Moore and son, Charles and daughter Maud, Miss Jessie Winter and Mr. Chester C. Winter. The children in Columbus planned their part of the arrangements for the occasion, and Miss Georgia carried out the home end of the program.

The family at home is therefore reduced to father, mother and one daughter, Miss Georgia.

Mrs. Winter had seen too many birthday anniversaries to be taken entirely by surprise, even if they did come one day late, and managed to get into the house and upstairs while she was out milking the cow.

She was sure she saw them coming over from the train and they might as well come down from their perch, and they came.

Of course the customary dinner was a prominent item on the program. The menu was well selected and prepared by the four daughters.

Mrs. Winters was kindly remembered by each one of the children with a gift, as a token of their good will and high regard for her, and even the "old man of the house," did not forget to honor her who has trudged along with him on the great highway of life for 10, these many years.

It was surely a happy and enjoyable day for the entire family. The only regret was to be again separated after this brief gathering and resume the avocations in the busy and tumultuous world.

It is well for children to remember and honor their father and mother—especially their mother, for this can all be summed up in three words, "Mother, Home and Heaven," and when the mother is gone there will be nothing left but to remember her in Heaven.

Time in Japan.

The Japanese divide the twenty-four hours into twelve periods, of which six belong to the night and six to the day, their day beginning at sunrise and ending at sunset.

Whether the day or night be long or short, there are always six periods in each. To attain this the characters or numerals on the scale are adjustable.

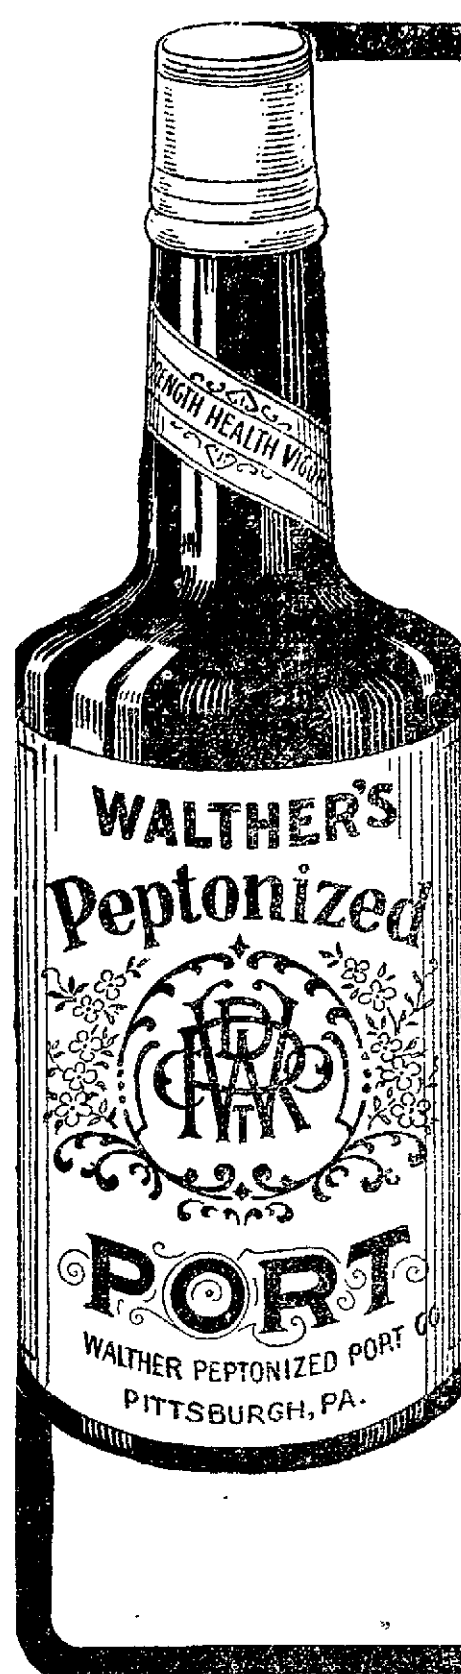

Two of them are set, one to agree with the sunrise, the other with sunset, and the four characters between them divide the space into equal portions.

Thus when the period of daylight is longer than the night, the day hours will be proportionately longer than those at night.

Another peculiarity in their scale is that they use only six characters, those from four to nine, and these read backward.—London Express.

What WALTHER'S PEPTONIZED PORT is and does

It is simply a good, honest, common-sense food tonic—a combination of rich Port Wine and Pure Pepsin,—nothing else. It is not a cure-all, or a medicine for acute or chronic diseases.

It does not take the place of the doctor. It does strengthen weak digestive organs, tones and builds up the impaired, impoverished nerves, muscles and blood, and promotes a perfect condition of vigorous health. It is a valuable remedy for dyspepsia, indigestion, and stomach troubles generally—for weakened vitality and impaired strength. It is a preparation of great worth for nursing mothers, tired women, old folks, invalids and convalescents. It is highly recommended by physicians and prescribed by them—both its constituents being of long demonstrated worth.

Quite a number of the friends of Mrs. Ella Fresher called on her at her home, 262 South Second street, on Saturday evening to assist her in celebrating the anniversary of her birth. Their coming was not known to Mrs. Fresher, and she was given a complete surprise. She was equal to the occasion, however, and made all at home. Those present were: Mrs. Wolverton, Mrs. Parker and son, Mrs. Hampton, Mrs. Wakely, Mrs. Maggie Bopus, Mrs. Wm. Trout and Miss Mary McKeever. A fine supper was served and an enjoyable time was had. At midnight the party left for their homes, all wishing the lady many happy returns of the occasion.

A REMARKABLE OPERATION.

Case of Astigmatism Cured by a Surgeon's Knife.

Medical circles will be much interested in the account contained in the New York Medical Journal, published the other day, of the recent cure of a case of astigmatism by Dr. George J. Bull through an operation upon a young woman's eye.

The patient's eye had an inverse astigmatism, as Dr. Bull prefers to call it; in other words, one in which the refraction is greatest in the horizontal meridian. The eye, looking at the radiating lines on a distant clock dial, could see distinctly only the horizontal lines. Describing the operation, which is declared by oculists to mark a new era in the cure of astigmatism, Dr. Bull says:

"I made a complete tenotomy of the left external rectus, being careful not to cut the capsule much beyond the upper and lower borders of the tendon. Three days later the ophthalmologist showed that the corneal astigmatism of the left eye had disappeared. The curvature of the vertical meridian had not changed; that of the horizontal meridian had diminished."

"Knowing from experience in other cases that operations on the recti muscles frequently cause changes in the refraction, and particularly in astigmatism, I gave the patient the trial frame with the glasses chosen for her a few days before, and she remarked at once that they blurred her sight. I pointed out to her the error, and she was able to see the lowest line of distant letters without glasses and that all the lines in the clock dial were equally black and distinct."

Women as Well as Men
Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

OPERA CHAIRS

Taken From Opera House to Park—
Architect Preparing for Enlargement of Casino.

The two hundred and fifty opera chairs in the old Jones Opera House have been sold by W. D. Fulton to W. D. Harris, manager of Idlewild Park, who will have them revarnished and repaired and added to the seating equipment of Idlewild Park Casino.

Architect Wilbur T. Mills of Columbus, was today in consultation with manager Harris, and will probably prepare the plans for the enlarged casino at the park. An entirely new stage will be built, of such size that all scenery used will be drop scenery of same as is in use in the Auditorium, and of the same size.

The stage proper will be 36 feet by 45, from the curtain line, and four feet "apron," that is the distance from the curtain to the footlights. The top of the stage will be 70 feet above the ground, 65 feet above the stage floor, giving room to build 30 foot drop scenes, the largest in use, and five feet above the gridiron, affording ample room to work above.

THE W. C. T. U.

At the meeting held on Tuesday, February 10, the devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. Teeter, who read for the lesson the third chapter of Malachi, which was well chosen in accordance with the topic which followed.

Rescue Work.

Mrs. Teeters read a very interesting leaflet written by Isabel Wno Lake, the National Superintendent of Rescue Work, which was, in part:

"If discouragements were not so closely allied to pride, I believe, as women of the 19th century, we might look at the vexed question of the wandering girls about us, with a justifiable sense of hopelessness, and work only in preventive lines. On the contrary, this awful condition is inspiring, and we conclude, as 'National Rescue Workers' of the 'Woman's Christian Temperance Union,' that a body whose momentum could carry it to such depths, must, with the proper force applied, the force of God, be lifted to the highest plane. No analysis of the question seems necessary or practical; it is an unsolved equation, save as this white ribbon, which represents the consolidated motherhood of the world, may unravel it.

Can we alter these conditions? And if so, how? There is no form or expression of love equal to simple justice. Let us look judgmentally at this matter, unchained by prejudice or the fatal hush of society, and rapidly advance near the enemy."

True delicacy is never the outgrowth of a prudish, timid reserve, but is ever the refinement of strength: women who argue against the need of this work are either ignorant or cowards, for the suffering and contagion alone connected with it, to say nothing of their newer dying souls, should be looked after, and that at once, in order that preventive work may be effectively and permanently done. We have long been in ignorance of this submerged woman's life, consequently her heart sorrow is little known. It makes no music on the ocean of life, for it has no shore, and there can be no melody of its waves. Judgment, after all, is but a balancing of reasons. Let us think deeply and deal justly with the erring woman. Then we will have reached the plane where we may talk of loving mercy.

"Let us arise to the situation, and exercise simple justice in a matter that concerns, effects our entire community, and make it possible for any wanderers in the world, to return from such paths of sin, by making the place to which we invite her so attractive in every way that from necessity or choice no woman will remain an outcast."

During the business hours a letter was read from the secretary of the Geneva fund. The contents were accepted and an appropriation made for that fund, as a token of love and appreciation for the state president, who will be sent as a delegate to the world's convention, which will be held at Geneva, Switzerland, next June.

Tuesday, February 17, being the heavenly birthday of Frances Willard, a commemorative meeting will be held. An appropriate program has been arranged by Mrs. Hare, superintendent of Red Letter Days.

A letter from the National President requests that at all these meetings there might be sung "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Home, Sweet Home," and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," having in mind the National W. C. T. U. motto given to us by Miss Willard, "For God and Home and Native Land," also "All 'Round the World the Ribbon White is Twined." As temperance reformers we have much to encourage us.

The President urges all solicitors of Rescue work to bring their books to the meeting to be held Tuesday.
